

A very warm welcome to this evening's concert - thanks very much for coming along.

West Bergholt Band was formed 44 years ago by a distinguished army bandsman who retired to West Bergholt and became one of Colchester's most popular peripatetic music teachers. As a result, the band in those early days was comprised of predominantly school-age musicians, as anyone Sid taught (including myself, my siblings, and my future wife) were recruited into the band.

Sid passed away in January 1990 and since then the band has matured into a group which is blessed with musicians of all ages. However, as young musicians tend to leave for University more often than older musicians do, the band perform regular events with schools to (hopefully) attract new players to help retain the mix of young & previously-young which keeps the band successful & vibrant. As the last few years have somewhat reduced the opportunities for these schools events, we are delighted to be here tonight and to be sharing the stage with the talented musicians from The Gilberd School. Hopefully a few more of them will join either our Training Band (Grades 1-4) or our Concert Band (Grade 4+).

After the terrific Army Band concert earlier this year, tonight provides another (all be it far less impressive) opportunity to perform in a full-sized concert band, this time alongside a mixture of expert players and players that the Gilberd musicians will be helping out as we play. As the concert is only the second time we've played these pieces together (or almost together) it goes without saying that the school musicians have done absolutely brilliantly.

Tonight's event wouldn't have been possible without the support of the staff from The Gilberd School (especially Mrs Joliffe who has worked tirelessly to pull this together) and of course to the Gilberd School musicians and their transport-providing parents & guardians. The band really do enjoy our schools events, so we're hugely appreciative for your support tonight and/or for taking part. I hope you enjoy the concert.

Graham.
